The SDMH Renal Service

History of the Service

The Renal Service was opened at Wollongong Hospital in 1978 as a satellite service of Prince Henry Hospital in Sydney. It became an independent service and employed its first specialist Renal Physician in 1980. It initially had six dialysis machines.

Today the service covers the Illawarra Shoalhaven Local Health District from Coledale to Milton/Ulladulla Hospitals. The Service employs a wide range of health professionals including specialist renal physicians, specialist nursing staff, allied health staff and technical staff.

SDMH is now a satellite service of the Wollongong centre and has 13 chairs.
Shoalhaven Hospital

The SDMH Renal Service caters for the needs of outpatients who require renal related treatment. Patients and their families and carers are encouraged to become involved in the treatment planning and to share any problems or concerns with staff so that the relevant supports can be put in place.

The highly qualified staff assist people with kidney disease and their carers through individually tailored treatments, long term disease control or possibly a kidney transplant.

Many people today are not aware of the problems which people with kidney disease and their families face. The Renal Service at Shoalhaven Hospital aims to make the lives of their patients and their carers easier while offering the highest quality treatment available.

The SDMH Renal Service understands the important role that carers play in assisting and supporting the renal patient at home. Carers are important partners in care and are welcome to make contact with staff of the service as needed.
About the Shoalhaven Hospital Renal Service

Accessing the Service

The Shoalhaven Hospital Renal Service is situated in Scenic Drive (near the corner of Shoalhaven Street).

There are some dedicated parking spaces outside the unit. One hour parking is also available in Scenic Drive, although this is extended if you have a mobility parking sticker.

How to contact the Renal Service

Phone: 02 4423 9722 or 4423 9723
Fax: 02 4423 9747

Waiting Room/Reception

There is a general waiting room with seating and reading material. When you are waiting please look at the information on our carer specific and other notice boards.

Emergency Procedures

In the case of a medical emergency please present to a local emergency department or ring 000 for an ambulance. On arrival give the triage nurse the name of the Renal Doctor who oversees the management of your care.
Doctors Appointments

To make a new appointment to see a Renal Physician a referral letter from a GP is required. For follow up appointments consult with the clerical staff at Wollongong Renal Centre reception to book an appointment on 02 4222 5443. This also applies to Shoalhaven appointments. Often there are long timeframes between appointments. The clerical staff will advise patients if they need another referral letter from their GP for the next appointment.

Hospital Pharmacy

The Shoalhaven Hospital Pharmacy provides specific renal medications for patients. On discharge from hospital the pharmacy will provide a Medication List of all your current medications and some of the new medications you have not had before. A list of the medications that they can provide for dialysis patients may be obtained from the renal unit.

A range of medications commonly used by patients with kidney disease are supplied by the hospital. These are the medications not available on the Pharmaceutical Benefits Scheme (PBS) at retail pharmacies.

Medications can be collected from the main pharmacy (9.00am - 4.30pm weekdays). We encourage you to order your repeat prescriptions a day or two ahead of picking them up.
Staff Roles & Responsibilities

Renal Service Director

The role of the Renal Service Director is to administer clinical services and have ultimate responsibility for the management of the Renal Services at Wollongong, Shellharbour, Shoalhaven and Milton Hospitals.

Physicians

The Renal Physicians (senior doctors) have a number of roles; primarily their work is to manage outpatients coming to the Renal Service for treatment and to manage the care of patients who go into hospital. Some extra responsibilities include teaching medical students, supervising junior doctors, and research into renal disease.

Some of the renal physicians travel from Wollongong to Shoalhaven Hospital to provide outpatient clinics, each on a different day, once a week in the outpatient clinic area which is in different section of the hospital from the dialysis unit.

Ultimately there will be a renal physician based in the Shoalhaven Renal Unit who will also provide outpatients clinics to Milton Hospital once a month. That physician will attend Wollongong on Tuesdays to participate in registrar, junior medical staff and medical student education as well as other renal service related meetings.
Nurse Unit Manager (NUM) Wollongong Renal Service

The Renal Services NUM is responsible for the service across Wollongong, Shellharbour, Shoalhaven and Milton Hospitals. This includes dialysis in the hospital and at home, and all outpatient renal services such as regular clinics.

Clinical Nurse Unit Manager (NUM) - Haemodialysis

The Haemodialysis NUM is responsible for the coordination of all patients’ haemodialysis sessions. This role involves scheduling of haemodialysis sessions in the Nowra area. They are the contact person for any issues involving haemodialysis for patients and their families and carers.

Pre-dialysis Coordinator/Vascular Access Nurse

The Pre-dialysis Co-ordinator’s role is to provide information and education to patients and their families and carers on treatment options for End Stage Renal Disease. The Pre-dialysis Coordinator provides important information on options for dialysis therapies, such as Peritoneal Dialysis and Haemodialysis either at home or at a Renal Service. The coordinator will also discuss the limitations and benefits of different types of dialysis therapy, along with the Renal Physician.

The Vascular Access Nurse’s role involves organising the referral to the surgeon for creation of a vascular access such as a fistula for haemodialysis, providing education to patients on the care of the vascular access, monitoring the function and organising any follow-up procedures required for the vascular access.
Dietician

The Renal Dietician provides advice to patients who are unwell and in hospital or who are outpatients. The Renal Dietician provides specific individualised advice about how people can manage the symptoms of their kidney disease. The Dietician can offer advice on food labelling, adapting recipes, eating out and food shopping for those with kidney disease. They also provide education to groups about renal specific diets.

Clinic Nurse

The clinic nurse is responsible for assessing patients prior to their appointment with the Renal Physician (e.g. check blood pressure, checking results).
Kidney Disease today – a hidden problem

Kidney disease, according to current trends and statistics, is on the increase in the Illawarra and Shoalhaven area. Currently about 8,000 people are being seen by the Renal Service each year.

The most common causes of kidney failure are:
• Nephritis
• Diabetes
• High blood pressure
• Vascular disease
• Polycystic kidney disease
• Kidney stones
• Analgesic abuse

Once diagnosed, a patient with kidney disease is assessed and possible treatments will be recommended including control of the disease with drugs or through diet.

Should kidney disease result in kidney failure a further choice of treatments are available.
Pre-Dialysis

When patients with Chronic Kidney Disease (CKD) approach End Stage Renal Failure (ESRF) the Renal Physician will discuss a number of treatment options for managing a patient’s kidney disease. The Renal Physician may discuss both palliative or conservative treatment options or begin planning for dialysis. At this time patients can expect to be introduced to the pre-dialysis coordinator/vascular access nurse, social worker and the dietician. At this time we discuss the types of dialysis available, the impact dialysis will have on lifestyle and functioning and changes dialysis may make to diet.
Dialysis

Dialysis, or artificial kidney treatment, is available to patients either at Wollongong Hospital, Shellharbour Hospital, Shoalhaven District Memorial Hospital, or at home. Currently dialysis is not provided at Milton Hospital.

Haemodialysis

Patients in consultation with the Renal Physician are advised on the most appropriate location for haemodialysis, whether that is home dialysis or at the Service. Patients are trained to use their own haemodialysis machine in the Home Dialysis Unit. Such machines enable most people who depend on dialysis to continue their normal lifestyle yet be in regular contact with trained staff.

Patients who attend the Service for haemodialysis do so three times per week, usually either, Monday, Wednesday and Friday or Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Patients are normally allocated either a morning or afternoon shift; however this is always subject to alteration by the Nurse Unit Manager of the Haemodialysis Unit who has to consider the needs of all of the patients using the service. This may mean that shifts alter if someone is determined to have a greater clinical need for a specific shift.
Peritoneal Dialysis

This form of artificial kidney treatment can be continuous ambulatory peritoneal dialysis (CAPD) or automated peritoneal dialysis (APD). This type of dialysis is normally completed at home either through the day (CAPD) or overnight (APD). Patients attend the Home Dialysis Unit at Wollongong Hospital for training.
Kidney Transplants

Patients considered to be suitable recipients are placed on a waiting list for a kidney transplant. While the preparation for such an operation is handled at The Wollongong Hospital the actual transplant operation is carried out at Prince of Wales Hospital where the average stay is 7 - 10 days.

After a transplant the patient is followed up at their local service. For patients from the Shoalhaven area in the early transplant period, (one month after discharge), and the need for daily reviews, it is recommended that they stay at Alkira Lodge adjacent to the Wollongong Renal Centre to minimise the need to travel long distances. Patients also cannot drive for six weeks after a transplant.

Live donor transplantation is an option for people with suitable and willing donors. Please discuss this with your renal physician and the transplant coordinator. There is a very detailed and strict evaluation process for all transplantation.

There is an urgent need for kidney donors to give the gift of life to the 1200 Australians currently waiting for a suitable transplant.

Please note that at a time recommended by your Renal Physician detailed and specific information regarding the above treatment options will be discussed with you and your family by the appropriate Renal Service staff.
Interpreter Services

The Heath Care Interpreter Service is available for patients and families and carers, who do not speak English as a first language or who are deaf, for all hospital visits and appointments with health staff. Appointments usually need to be booked in advance. In emergencies they can sometimes provide immediate face-to-face appointments or telephone interpretation, depending on what staff is available. If health interpreting services are unavailable staff can use the Translating and Interpreting Service (TIS) who provide interpreting over the phone.

Health staff is responsible for arranging interpreters for patients and carers. You can contact the health interpreting services directly, but it is best to ask your doctor or nurse or another health professional to book an interpreter because health staff will be given priority.

The Health Care Interpreter Service can be contacted on 1800 247 272 (24/7 including public holidays). This service is also available after hours through health staff (staff can arrange a health care interpreter by referring to the after hours interpreters lists, which are located in all wards/departments).

Non-English speaking patients, families and carers who need to talk to English speaking staff can phone the Translation and Interpreter Service (TIS) on 131 450. When you phone, tell the operator the language you speak and ensure you have the name and phone number of the person you wish to contact. This free service is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.
Travel and Accommodation

Alkira Lodge and Alkira Annex

If Shoalhaven based patients and their family need to attend Wollongong Hospital as outpatients to receive treatment, Alkira Lodge and Annex provide low cost accommodation in a home environment for adult cancer and renal patients and their carers. It is situated close to the hospital car park on the corner of Dudley and Sperry Streets. Some patients staying at the Lodge and Annex may qualify for financial assistance through IPTAAS or Veterans Affairs. Holidays/dialysis

There are various holidaying organisations that cater for the renal patients specific needs. Dialysis patients are encouraged to go on holidays or attend short trips. This is possible with assistance of the Haemodialysis holiday coordinator. There is a holiday co-ordinator in the Renal Service.

Organising Dialysis at another Centre

Dialysis centres throughout Australia are happy to accept patients for temporary dialysis for holidays or business if they have the space available.

A booklet is available in the unit for you to locate dialysis units around Australia. Once you have found a location you will then need to phone the unit and discuss your needs and make a booking.

Please inform the dialysis staff of your booking details and they will organise the tests, Physicians letters and other paper work required and send to the holiday destination unit.

It is recommended to make bookings as early as possible as blood tests, letters etc may take 2 to 3 weeks to organise and the holiday unit will require all details before attending their service.
