

Introduction to clinical simulation teaching.

One day course. Held bi annually. 8.30am to 4pm

Illawarra Shoalhaven Health Education Centre 42 Loftus Street Wollongong.

Simulation is a fantastic way to provide education for staff. Gone are the days of only using Power Point as a teaching tool. With simulation, staff get to experience the event, practice in a safe learning environment and receive feedback on performance, without ever practicing on real patients or in a real environment.

This one day course will introduce educators or those involved in teaching, to simulation as a teaching method. The day includes practice in developing simulation education sessions; delivering simulation using a variety of different mannequins available to you at the ISHEC; as well as provide you with skills and techniques in debriefing simulation education sessions.

This course is aimed at clinical staff who are new to simulation or who have not previously had any formal instruction in simulation teaching and would like to introduce this methodology into their teaching program.

To ensure hands on experience during this session, places are limited.

The course is free, just bring your lunch.

To enrol please contact: Illawarra Shoalhaven Health Education Centre, 42 Loftus Street Wollongong. T: 4254 3666; or email: islhd-hecbookings@health.nsw.gov.au

Please check website for course and closing dates.

Course fees may apply for external participants.

Staff comments from previous course:

- An excellent course. Worthwhile for anyone with an interest in simulation.
- I feel it has enabled me to look at sim as a good tool for educating.
- Valuable training method.
- The course was more than expected felt it will be a great way to present education.
- I was engaged the whole day. Definitely not boring.